This conference is a leading forum where state-of-the-art innovative results, the latest developments as well as future perspectives relating to robot and human interactive communication are presented and discussed.

The main conference will host presentations of original contributions including new methods, studies, designs, theories, and applications of Human-Robot Interactive Communication systems and technologies surrounding it.

The workshops, tutorials, and interactive sessions will provide an opportunity for participants from academia and industry to focus on prospective topics.

Expert Keynote speakers from academia, industry, end users and policy-making bodies will give plenary talks about emerging technologies, methods, R&D and Technological barriers to market.

Special sessions will target specific topics and audiences.

CONFERENCE THEME:

Robots with Heart, Mind, and Soul

REGULAR PAPERS Prospective authors are invited to submit high-quality papers reporting original results under the broad theme of robot and human interactive communication SUBMISSION DEADLINE: MARCH 15, 2020

TUTORIALS AND WORKSHOPS will provide half-day or full-day training or discussions in applied research and applications. Proposals for tutorials and workshops should include: objectives, intended audience, list of prospective speakers, and topic list SUBMISSION DEADLINE: FEBRUARY 16, 2020

SPECIAL SESSIONS Prospective special session organizers are invited to submit a proposal to the special session chair.
